Understanding Our Moment In History

Jungian scholar and cultural historian Richard Tarnas will be returning to Columbus to speak about our age of transformation, and explore together the challenges and possibilities of this time for which Jung used the term kairos, the pivotal moment for a fundamental spiritual and cultural change in human experience.

We seem to be living at the end of an era. The past and the future are converging in our time with extraordinary force. Old structures are cracking, the moment of creative chaos is upon us, and the drama of our age has become a great question: What new principles, what new structures — social, political, economic, intellectual, psychological, spiritual—will emerge to shape our future? So much is at stake. Can we find a place of equilibrium, an eye in the storm, from which we can engage this time of intense polarization and radical change?

Join Richard Tarnas this weekend as we seek a perspective informed by Jungian insights that might illuminate our moment in history and provide a larger context for both understanding and action.

Friday ~ May 13, 2011
7pm – 9 pm

The Friday lecture will present an overview of our historical moment, how we got here, and what now seems to be unfolding, followed by discussion with audience members.

2 CEUs for Counselors, Social Workers
and Psychologists

Saturday ~ May 14
10 am - 4 pm

In Saturday's workshop we will look more precisely at the archetypal dynamics now active in the collective psyche and how these are playing out in individual lives, with our perspective enriched by an archetypal understanding, the concept of synchronicity, and illuminations from music and the other arts.

Lunch on our own

5 CEUs for Counselors, Social Workers
and Psychologists
